

Master List of Fellowship/Grant Deadlines

Postdoctoral Fellowship in Academic Libraries

Deadline: December 30, 2009

Award Amount: Remuneration varies by sponsoring institution; benefits and some travel expenses are also provided. Depending on the institution, fellowships are for either one or two years.

The Council on Library and Information Resources (CLIR) fellowship provides new scholars in the humanities a unique opportunity to develop expertise in the new forms of scholarly research and the information resources that support them, both traditional and digital, that are challenging research institutions. The program offers fellowships to individuals who believe that there are opportunities to develop meaningful linkages among disciplinary scholarship, libraries, archives, and evolving digital tools. Former fellows have high placement rates as researchers and professionals in academic libraries and as members of teaching faculties. Applicants must have earned their Ph.D.s in disciplines in the humanities within the past five years (or earn them before starting the program). All fields in the humanities will be considered. Researching Nantucket's Historical Library Collection Fellowship

Award Amount: $900, Travel expenses reimbursed up to $600.

The Nantucket Historical Association (NHA) annual fellowship, the E. Geoffrey and Elizabeth Thayer Verney Fellowship, encourages research in the collections of the Nantucket Historical Association Research Library and is open to academics, graduate students, and independent scholars. The Nantucket Historical Association is the principal repository of Nantucket history, with extensive archives, collections of historic properties, and art and artifacts that broadly illustrate Nantucket's past. Topics of research for recent scholars have included health aboard whale ships, women at sea, scrimshaw, samplers, local artists, Nantucket's architectural heritage, Quakerism, the African-American and Cape Verdean communities, the Quaise Asylum, and abolitionism. The E. Geoffrey and Elizabeth Thayer Verney Fellow resides in the Thomas Macy House, a historic property owned by the association, for up to a three-week period. Housing is available January - May and October - December 2010. NHA Visiting Research Scholars are expected to produce an article suitable for publication in the summer edition of Historic Nantucket, the NHA's quarterly journal, and to deliver a public lecture on the subject of their research, as well as a presentation to NHA staff. Projects resulting in the publication of a book, article, conference paper, or other media, are looked upon favorably.

Rich Diversity of Human Culture Book Awards

Deadline: December 31, 2009

Award Amount: $10,000

The Cleveland Foundation's Anisfield-Wolf Book Awards recognizes books that have made important contributions to our understanding of racism and our appreciation of the rich diversity of human cultures. Books that open and challenge peoples minds are requested. Past winners have presented the extraordinary art and culture of peoples around the world, explored human rights violations, exposed the effects of racism on children, reflected on growing up bi-racial and illuminated the dignity of people as they search for justice. To be eligible, books must be written in English and published in the previous year. Awards are given for both fiction and non-fiction, with winners being announced in the spring. Works of poetry are eligible for the fiction prize. All submitted materials become the property of the Anisfield-Wolf Book Awards and will not be returned. Click here to view previous winners.

The International Scholar Rescue Fund

Deadline: January 1, 2010, April 1, 2010, and September 1, 2010

Award Amount: up to US $25,000, plus health insurance

The Institute of International Education announces its Scholar Rescue Fund program.

Professors, established researchers and other senior academics from any country, field or discipline may qualify. Applications are reviewed for academic qualifications, the quality/potential of the candidate's work, and the urgency of threats faced. Preference is given to scholars

- who are facing immediate, severe and targeted threats to their lives and/or careers in their home country or country of residence;
- with a Ph.D. or other highest degree in their field who have extensive teaching or research experience at a university, college or other institution of higher learning;
- who demonstrate superior academic accomplishment or promise;
- whose selection is likely to benefit the academic community in the home and/or host country or region.

Applications from female scholars and scholars who are members of ethnic, racial, cultural or religious minority groups, or those otherwise underrepresented in their field, are encouraged. Fellowships are approved by the SRF Selection Committee which convenes at least three (3) times per year. The final fellowship award is dependent upon the location of the host institution, the cost of living, and the value of any additional contributions from the host institution or other source. Host academic institutions agree to accept the fellowship funds and disburse the funds to the scholar. In most cases, host institutions are required to match the SRF fellowship award through partial salary/stipend support, research materials, and other in-kind assistance.

West African Pre-Doctoral Fellowships

Deadline: January 2, 2009

Award Amount: Round trip travel to Africa and $3,000.

The West African Research Center invites applications from graduate students for the WARA Pre-Doctoral Fellowship, for research in West Africa during the summer of 2010. Awardees will conduct research for a two to three month period in order to 1) prepare a doctoral research proposal; or 2) carry out research related to the completion of another terminal degree program (e.g. MFA or MPH). Funded through the bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the U.S. State Department, this competition is open to U.S. citizens who are currently enrolled in graduate programs at institutions of higher education in the United States. It is advisable that applicants be conversant in an African language spoken where they will be conducting research. Priority will be given to applicants who are at the predissertation stage, that is, who will be returning to their institution to complete course work, exams, etc. before beginning their fieldwork.

West African Post-Doctoral Fellowships

Deadline: January 2, 2009

Award Amount: Round trip travel to Africa and $3,000.

The West African Research Center announces its Post-Doctoral Fellowship for research in West Africa during the summer of 2010 fellowship. Awardees will conduct research for a two to three month period in order to 1) complete or elaborate upon an earlier project; 2) initiate a new research project; or 3) enhance their understanding of a particular topic in order to improve teaching effectiveness or broaden course offerings. Funded through the bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the U.S. State Department, this competition is open to U.S. citizens already holding a Ph.D. who are currently affiliated with an academic institution or who work in another related domain (e.g. public health or museology). All applicants must have been affiliated with an institution of higher education or research within the last three years. It is advisable that applicants be conversant in an African language spoken where they will be conducting research.

Neuroscience Research Award

Deadline: January 4, 2010

Award Amount: $75,000 annually for three years

The McKnight Endowment Fund for Neuroscience supports innovative research designed to bring science closer to the day when diseases of the brain and behavior can be accurately diagnosed, prevented, and treated. The McKnight Scholar Award program gives promising young investigators in the early stages of an independent research career the opportunity for scientific development on important problems in brain science. Traditionally, successful candidates have held faculty positions for at least one year. Applicants must have the following:

- M.D. and/or Ph.D. degree; formal postdoctoral training completed at the time of application.
- A record of meritorious research in areas pertinent to the interests of the Endowment Fund.
- Not more than four years of experience in an independent/tenure-track faculty position (exceptions may be made to account for parental leave).
- Evidence of a commitment to a career in neuroscience.
- U.S. citizenship or lawful permanent resident status.
- U.S.-based sponsoring institution, to which awards will be paid.

Brain Tumor Research Fellowships

Deadline: January 8, 2010

Award Amount: Research Fellowships $80,000 over two years;
Translational Research $75,000 for one year.

The American Brain Tumor Association is accepting applications for its 2010 Basic Research Fellowship and Translational Research Grant programs. ABTA Basic Research Fellowships are two-year training awards that support the salaries of young researchers entering the field of brain tumor research. Often the first award of a researcher's career, the fellowship provides the opportunity for young, bright, and motivated investigators to learn from mentors. Fellowship Eligibility: MD must be within two years of residency completion or within five years post residency training as of July 1, 2010. OR: PhDs will have their doctorate by January 1, 2010 and will have no more than five years post doctoral laboratory experience by July 1, 2010. If candidate has multiple post doctoral degrees, the last conferred postdoctoral degree will be used to determine eligibility.

Researching Epilepsy Fellowship

Deadline: January 8, 2010

Award Amount: $150,000

The Esther A. & Joseph Klingenstein Fund supports, in the early stages of their careers, young investigators engaged in basic or clinical research that may lead to a better understanding of epilepsy. The Klingenstein Fund recognizes that to accomplish this goal it is necessary to encourage a variety of new approaches. Several areas within the neurosciences are of particular interest to the Fund:

Cellular and molecular neuroscience—Studies of the mechanisms of neuronal excitability and development, and of the genetic basis of seizure disorders.

Neural systems—Studies of the integrative function of the nervous system.

Clinical research—Studies designed to improve the prevention, diagnosis, treatment and our understanding of the causes of epilepsy.

To qualify for an award investigators must hold the Ph.D. and/or M.D. degrees, and have completed all research training, including post-doctoral training.

1. U.S. citizenship is not a requirement, but it is expected that candidates will be permanent residents of the U.S. and that their research will be carried out in U.S. institutions.
2. Holding an award from another foundation concurrently with a Klingenstein award requires the approval of the Advisory Committee.
3. The candidate should be an independent investigator, holding a tenure track academic rank (but not yet tenured) in a university or medical school, or the equivalent standing in a research institute or medical center.

Long Term Research in Environmental Biology

Deadline: January 9, 2010

Award Amount: $90,000 per year (direct and indirect costs) and $450,000 over a 5-year (60 month) effort

The National Science Foundation's Long Term Research in Environmental Biology (LTREB) encourages the submission of proposals aimed at generating extended time series of biological and environmental data that address ecological and evolutionary processes aimed at resolving important issues in environmental biology. Researchers must have collected at least six years of previous data to qualify for funding. The proposal also must present a cohesive conceptual rationale or framework for ten years of research. Questions or hypotheses outlined in this conceptual framework must guide an initial 5-year proposal as well as a subsequent, abbreviated renewal. Together, these will constitute a decadal research plan appropriate to begin to address critical and novel long-term questions in environmental biology. As part of the requirements for funding, projects must show how collected data will be shared broadly with the scientific community and the interested public. NSF welcomes proposals on behalf of all qualified scientists, engineers and educators. The Foundation strongly encourages women, minorities and persons with disabilities to participate fully in its programs.

The Everyday and the Ordinary Fellowship

Deadline: January 8, 2010

Award Amount: $45,000

The Rutgers University Center for Cultural Analysis (CCA), an interdisciplinary research center, announces a competition for visiting postdoctoral fellowships for 2010-2011. For its 2010-11 program, the Center for Cultural Analysis invites research proposals on 6 topics related to the everyday and the ordinary. A longstanding interest of many disciplines, including history, art history, anthropology, sociology and philosophy, as well as literary and cultural studies, the everyday and the ordinary have enjoyed a conceptual resurgence in recent years. All fellows will have access to the Center's resources during the tenure of the fellowship and will be expected to participate in and to present their work to the Center seminars, which meet regularly throughout the academic year.

Life Science Research Fellowship

Deadline: January 15, 2010

Award Amount: $30,000 to $75,000

The Whitehall Foundation, through its program of grants and grants-in-aid, assists scholarly research in the life sciences. The Foundation emphasizes the support of young scientists at the beginning of their careers and productive senior scientists who wish to move into new fields of interest. Consideration is given, however, to applicants of all ages. The chief criteria for support are the quality and creativity of the research as well as the commitment of the Principal Investigator (a minimum time allocation of 20% is required). Research grants are available to established scientists of all ages working at accredited institutions in the United States. Applications will be judged on the scientific merit and the innovative aspects of the proposal as well as on the competence of the applicant. Research grants of up to three years will be provided. A renewal grant with a maximum of two years is possible, but it will be awarded on a competitive basis

Fellowships for Advanced Creative or Scholarly Projects in the Arts and Humanities

Deadline: January 15, 2010

Award Amount: Room and Board for one month stay.

Located on the Italian Riviera in the village of Bogliasco, the Liguria Study Center provides residential fellowships for qualified persons working on advanced creative or scholarly projects in the arts and humanities. Bogliasco Fellowships are granted to qualified persons doing advanced creative work or scholarly research in the following disciplines: archaeology, architecture/landscape architecture, classics, dance, film/video, history, literature, music, philosophy, theater, and the visual arts. In the arts, the Study Center welcomes persons doing both creative and scholarly work (such as art history, musicology, film criticism, and so on). With respect to dance, music, and theater, however, the Center does not have rehearsal studio space for persons wishing to work extensively in performance. Applicants for Fellowships are expected to demonstrate significant achievement in their disciplines, commensurate with their age and experience. In addition, they must submit descriptions of the projects that they intend to pursue in Bogliasco. An approved project is presumed to lead to the completion of an artistic, literary, or scholarly work, followed by publication, performance, exhibition, or other public presentation.

Dissertation Fellowship in African and African Diaspora Studies

Deadline: January 22, 2009

Award Amount: $30,000 stipend, health insurance, a $1,500 research budget

Boston College's (BC's) African and African Diaspora Studies Program (AADS) is proud to announce the inaugural year of its dissertation fellowship competition. The fellowship will support a scholar with a project focusing on any topic within African and/or African diaspora studies. The fellow must remain in residence for the nine-month academic year, deliver one public lecture, and teach one seminar course. The successful applicant will have full access to BC's seven libraries as well as several rare book and manuscripts collections. Of particular interest is the Nicholas M. Williams/Caribbean Collection, consisting of materials from and about Africa, Jamaica, and the British West Indies. The fellow can also benefit from BC's newly founded Institute for the Liberal Arts, as well as events sponsored by programs/installations in International Studies, American Studies, Asian American Studies, Middle East Studies, Islamic Civilization and Societies, as well as the internationally renowned McMullen Museum. Boston College is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer dedicated to building a culturally diverse faculty and a multicultural environment. We strongly encourage applications from women, individuals from historically underrepresented groups and individuals with disabilities, and covered veterans. Eligible applicants must complete all requirements for the PhD, aside from the dissertation, by the start of the fellowship year.

Post Graduate Student Athlete Program

Deadline: January 23, 2010

Award Amount: $24,000

The National Collegiate Athletic Association established the Walter Byers Postgraduate Scholarship Program as a means of recognizing the contributions of the former executive director through encouraging excellence in academic performance by student-athletes. Under this program, one male and one female student-athlete annually will be awarded a postgraduate scholarship in recognition of outstanding academic achievement and potential for success in postgraduate study. It is intended that an individual named a Byers Scholar will be recognized as one who has combined the best elements of mind and body to achieve national distinction for his or her achievements and promises to be a future leader in his or her chosen field of career service. To be eligible for consideration, nominees shall

- have an overall undergraduate cumulative grade-point average of 3.500 or better (based on a maximum 4.000), or the equivalent in other recognized grading systems;

- have competed in intercollegiate athletics as a member of a varsity team at an NCAA member institution;

- be a graduating senior or be enrolled in graduate study at an NCAA member institution;

- have intentions of applying for admission into a graduate degree program at a properly accredited, nonprofit educational institution or into a post baccalaureate professional

- degree program at a professionally accredited law school, medical school or the equivalent, without restriction as to the national site of the institution;

- be committed to work on a full-time basis toward a graduate degree or toward a post baccalaureate professional degree;

- have evidenced superior character and leadership;

- have demonstrated that participation in athletics and community service has been a positive influence on the nominee's personal and intellectual development. Relative success in athletics is important but not of overriding significance;

and

- enroll into a graduate degree program within five years of being named a Byers Scholar.

United States citizenship is not a required criterion to satisfy eligibility requirements.

Dissertation Proposal Development Fellowship (DPDF) is designed to help early-stage graduate students in the humanities

Deadline: January 29, 2010

Award Amount: up to $5,000

The Dissertation Proposal Development Fellowship (DPDF) is designed to help early-stage graduate students in the humanities and social sciences formulate more effective doctoral dissertation proposals. Senior tenured faculty serve as research directors who identify research fields for groups of 12 graduate students. The faculty research directors design two workshops: one to prepare students to undertake summer research that will inform the design of their dissertation proposal, held in spring; the other to help students apply their summer research experiences to writing dissertation and funding proposals, held in the fall. Working together, research directors and graduate students help shape emerging fields in the humanities and social sciences. Students apply to one of five research fields and are required to attend and participate in both sets of workshops. Applicants may apply for summer funding but must also apply for summer financial support from their home institutions or extramural support. The DPDF program is open to second- and third-year graduate students in all disciplines of the social sciences and humanities who are currently enrolled full time in Ph.D. programs at accredited universities in the United States. First and fourth year students may, under exceptional circumstances, be eligible. Students in the humanities and social sciences undertaking doctoral dissertation research may apply for one of the five annual research fields named. The program is designed for second and third year PhD students, enrolled in U.S. institutions, who have not yet submitted and will not submit their dissertation proposals until after the fall workshop. Students who have completed their comprehensive/general/qualifying exams are eligible as long as they have not had their dissertation proposal formally approved by their department before the fall workshop.

North American Christianity Dissertation Fellowship Program

Deadline: February 1, 2010

Award Amount: $19,000

The Louisville Institute's Dissertation Fellowship program is designed to support the final year Ph.D. or Th.D. dissertation writing for students engaged in research pertaining to North American Christianity, especially projects related to Christian faith and life, religious institutions, and pastoral leadership. Applicants must be candidates for the Ph.D. or Th.D. degree who have fulfilled all pre-dissertation requirements, including approval of the dissertation proposal, by February 1 of the award year and expect to complete the dissertation by the end of the following academic year. The Fellowships are intended to support the final year of dissertation writing. Eligible proposals should promise a significant contribution to the study of American religion. Preference will be given to proposals that attempt: 1) to describe more fully how the Christian faith is actually lived by contemporary persons and to bring the resources of the Christian faith into closer relation to their daily lives 2) to help us understand more adequately the institutional reconfiguration of American religion, or 3) to explore the nature and challenge of pastoral leadership, with special attention to the conditions of contemporary Christian ministry in North America and the character of pastoral excellence. Proposals on certain other issues of importance to the churches are also welcome. Proposed projects may employ a variety of methodological perspectives, including, but not limited to, history, ethics, the social sciences, biblical studies, and historical, systematic, and practical theology. They may also be interdisciplinary in nature. In all its grant making, including the Dissertation Fellowship program, the Louisville Institute is interested in funding projects that contribute in significant ways to our understanding of contemporary religious communities. Consequently, very few dissertation projects funded in recent years have dealt with American religion prior to the mid-nineteenth century. Click here to view previously funded grants.

Pakistan Research Fellowships

Deadline: February 1, 2010

Award Amount: $3,000-$25,000

The American Institute of Pakistan Studies at the University of Wisconsin encourages and supports research on issues relevant to Pakistan and the promotion of scholarly exchange between the United States and Pakistan. To fulfill this mission, AIPS provides research fellowships to American researchers, administers lectureships, and sponsors academic conferences. Applications are invited for research fellowships at the pre or postdoctoral level for projects lasting two to nine months. Applications are invited for research fellowships at the pre- or post-doctoral level for projects lasting two to nine months. Awards will include international travel expenses and stipends (subject to availability of funds). The amount of the stipends will be comparable to Fulbright Awards and will be determined by the Fellowships Committee based on availability of funds and current rates as defined by the U.S. State Department. Applicants must be U.S. citizens or enrolled/employed full-time in an institution of higher education in the USA. Predoctoral applicants should have completed all requirements for the PhD except the dissertation.

Researching the Arctic

Deadline: January 14, 2010

Award Amount: $400,000

The National Science Foundation invites investigators at U.S. organizations to submit proposals to conduct research about the Arctic. Arctic research includes field and modeling studies and data analysis in and about the arctic region. Proposals may only be submitted by the U.S. Organizations. proposals should discuss how their results would contribute to an understanding of the arctic environment. Thus, while it is perfectly acceptable to propose a study of a relatively narrow disciplinary scope, an effort should also be made to explain how one would transfer the results to broader areas of research. Thus, the Arctic Sciences Division encourages proposals that focus on arctic phenomena and provide hypothesis-driven tests to produce the understanding needed to develop predictive tools based on first principles. Proposals to perform long term observations are best submitted to the Arctic Observing Network Program (AON). Similarly, proposals that treat generic processes that could be studied outside the Arctic are more appropriate to other programs within the Foundation. Proposers are encouraged to contact a program director if they have questions about the fit of a given research topic. Click here to view Abstracts of recent awards made through this program.

Deadline: January 15, 2010

Award Amount: $35,000 per year

The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace's Junior Fellows program is offered to uniquely qualified graduating seniors and individuals who have graduated during the past academic year. Carnegie Junior Fellows work as research assistants to the Endowment's senior associates. Junior Fellows have the opportunity to conduct research for books, co-author journal articles and policy papers, participate in meetings with high-level officials, contribute to congressional testimony and organize briefings attended by scholars, activists, journalists and government officials. Graduating seniors are nominated. All applicants must be eligible to work in the United States for a full 12 months from August 1 through July 31 following graduation. Students on F-1 visas who are eligible to work in the US for the full year (August 1 through July 31) may apply for the program. If attending a participating school outside of the United States, an applicant must be a U.S. citizen (due to work permit requirements). The Endowment is unable to consider anyone who has started graduate studies.

8. Postdoctoral Fellowships in Molecular Evolution

Deadline: January 15, 2010

Award Amount: $42,000 for one year to $84,000 for two years

The Smithsonian Postdoctoral Fellowship in Molecular Evolution is offered to support research at the Smithsonian Institution. The Smithsonian's molecular research facilities are located at National Museum of Natural History (NMNH), National Zoological Park (NZP) in the Washington, D.C. area, and at the Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute (STRI) in the Republic of Panama. Applicants must propose to conduct research in-residence for a period of 12 to 24 months. Applicants must have completed or be near completion of the Ph.D. Recipients who have not completed the Ph.D. at the time of application must provide proof of completion of the degree before the fellowship begins. Applicants interested in conducting research at these facilities are strongly encouraged to contact potential advisors/hosts at any of the Smithsonian's various Museums and Research Institutes prior to proposal preparation and submission.

Radiologic Sciences Research Seed Project

Deadline: January 15, 2010

Award Amount: up to $40,000

The Radiological Society of North America's Research and Education Foundation's seed grant will enable all levels of investigators throughout the world in defining objectives and testing hypotheses in preparation of major grant applications to corporations, foundations, and governmental agencies. The seed data from these projects will indicate feasibility and appropriateness of the research prior to applying for funds from other agencies. Nature of Projects:

- Any area of research related to the radiologic sciences.
- This grant mechanism will be open to all levels of radiologic investigators, with an established academic appointment.
- Applications should describe the unique nature of the research effort independent of existing research efforts. Greater emphasis will be placed on the likelihood of this research to attract future funding given the nature and extent of the preliminary data collected within the cycle of the grant.
- Projects focused on advancing imaging science, developing or evaluating medical imaging technology, or making innovative use of imaging science to answer important biologic or clinical questions are encouraged.

Summer Residency in France for Artists and Scholars

Deadline: January 15, 2010

Award Amount: Terra Summer Residency fellows are awarded a stipend of $5,000 and artists receive an additional $200 for the purchase of materials.

The Terra Foundation for American Art offers ten summer fellowships to artists and scholars from the United States and Europe. These fellowships are awarded to artists who have completed their studies at the Master's level and to doctoral students engaged in research on American art (from the eighteenth century to the 1980s). During their eight week stay, senior artists and art historians are in residence to mentor fellows and pursue their own work. Each Terra Summer Residency Fellow is provided with lodging and study or studio space, daily lunches, and a program consisting of independent study, meetings, and seminar. Applicants must be nominated by a professor at an academic institution. Such nominees must fall within one of the two following categories: American and European doctoral candidates researching a subject that contains a significant American art component, or that examines artistic exchange between America and Europe. Candidates should be at an advanced stage of their doctoral research and writing. American and European artists who have completed a Master's program (or its equivalent) in mixed media and/or painting. Preference is given to applicants who completed a Master's program within the past five years. All applicants are expected to be fluent in English. Knowledge of French is desirable, but not required. Click here to view previous fellows.

Humanities Long Term Fellowships

Deadline: January 15, 2009

Award Amount: $40,000

The American Antiquarian Society/National Endowment for the Humanities offers Long Term Visiting Academic Research Fellowships for persons who have already completed their formal professional training. Degree candidates and persons seeking support for work in pursuit of a degree may not hold AAS-NEH fellowships. These residencies in Worcester provide an opportunity not only for research in collections that are extraordinarily deep but also for collegial discussion with staff and other fellows, faculty in area colleges and universities, and other scholars visiting AAS from all over the United States and abroad. Hundreds of books and articles, some of them winners of major prizes, including the Pulitzer and Bancroft, have stemmed from AAS fellowships. Foreign nationals who have been residents in the United States for at least three years immediately preceding the application deadline for the fellowship are eligible. Preference will be given to individuals who have not held long-term fellowships during the three years preceding the period for which the application is being made. Social, Behavioral and Economic Sciences Doctoral Dissertation Research Improvement Programs

The National Science Foundation's Division of Social and Economic Sciences and Division of Behavioral and Cognitive Sciences award grants to doctoral students to improve the quality of dissertation research. These grants provide funds for items not normally available through the student's university. Additionally, these grants allow doctoral students to undertake significant data-gathering projects and to conduct field and archival research in settings away from their campus that would not otherwise be possible. Funds may be used for valid research expenses which include, but are not limited to, conducting field research in settings away from campus that would not otherwise be possible, data collection and sample survey costs, payments to subjects or informants, specialized research equipment, analysis and services not otherwise available, supplies, travel to archives, travel to specialized collections and facilities or field research locations, and partial living expenses for conducting necessary research away from the student's university. The proposal must be submitted through regular university channels by the dissertation advisor(s) on behalf of the graduate student who is at the point of initiating or already conducting dissertation research.

The student must be enrolled at a U.S. institution, but need not be a U.S. citizen. Proposals from women, minorities, and persons with disabilities are strongly encouraged.

*Archaeology

Deadline: None

Award Amount: $20,000

The NSF Archeology Program constitutes part of a larger Anthropological and Geographical and Regional Sciences cluster and its focus is limited to research of clear anthropological significance. In a proposal the students should describe why their research is important from an anthropological perspective.

<http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/bcs/arch/suppdi ss. j sp>

*Political Science

Deadline: January 15, 2010

Award Amount: $12,000

Outstanding proposals specify how the knowledge to be created advances our theoretical understanding of the study situation, so that people interested in similar situations in different contexts will learn from the project's outcome. The key is to be explicit in showing how the general theory explains the local situation, and in showing how the new knowledge from the local situation will advance the theory.

<http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/ses/pol i sci /ddri p1. j sp>

*Linguistics

Deadline: January 15, 2010; July 15, 2010

Award Amount: $12,000

An outstanding dissertation proposal will clearly specify the leading research questions and hypotheses, the data relevant to answering those research questions, the theoretical framework being used and the methods of analysis. It will provide a brief literature review and a clear work plan. It will also address the NSF review criterion of broader impacts.

<http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/bcs/l i ng/suppdi ss. j sp>

*Cultural Anthropology

Deadline: January 15, 2010; August 15, 2010

Award Amount: $20,000

The panel reviews 50-150 proposals each meeting, and usually ranks less than 20% in the "must fund" category. While the proposals span the breadth of diversity in cultural anthropology, the top-ranked proposals share some strengths which more proposals could display. On the most general level, the panel notes that projects that advance our theoretical understanding are more scientifically meritorious than descriptive projects which add a case study of some (albeit fascinating and topical) situation. Outstanding proposals specify how the knowledge to be created advances our theoretical understanding of the study situation, so that people interested in similar situations in different contexts will learn from the project's outcome. The key is to be explicit in showing how the general theory explains the local situation, and in showing how the new knowledge from the local situation will advance the theory

*Law and Social Science

Deadline: January 15, 2010; August 15, 2010

Award Amount: $6,000-$15,000

Outstanding proposals specify how the knowledge to be created advances our theoretical understanding of the study situation, so that people interested in similar situations in different contexts will learn from the project's outcome. The key is to be explicit in showing how the general theory explains the local situation, and in showing how the new knowledge from the local situation will advance the theory.

*Research on Science and Technology Surveys and Statistics

Deadline: January 15, 2010

Award Amount: $12,000

The Division of Science Resources Statistics (SRS) funds doctoral dissertation research on science, engineering, technology, and innovation (S&T) issues and policies that affect the U.S. in its international setting. It supports high quality doctoral research that may lead to (1) improved survey methodologies to generate S&T data, (2) creation or improvement of S&T indicators reflecting science, research and development, innovation activities, engineering, technology, or the science and engineering workforce, (3) strengthening of methodologies to analyze statistical S&T data, or (4) development of novel means to convey the information in these data to a variety of audiences. SRS encourages proposals that analyze SRS S&T data or SRS data in conjunction with relevant data from other sources, but also accepts proposals to analyze data from non-SRS sources alone, including international data.

http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/ddig_srs.jsp

*Methodology, Measurement, and Statistics

Deadline: January 16, 2010; August 16, 2010

Award Amount: $12,000

The Methodology, Measurement, and Statistics (MMS) Program is an interdisciplinary program in the Social, Behavioral, and Economic Sciences that supports the development of innovative analytical and statistical methods and models for those sciences. MMS seeks proposals that are methodologically innovative, grounded in theory, and have potential utility for multiple fields within the social and behavioral sciences. As part of its larger portfolio, the MMS Program partners with a consortium of federal statistical agencies to support research proposals that further the development of new and innovative approaches to surveys and to the analysis of survey data.

<http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/ses/mms/diss1.jsp>

*Economics

Deadline: January 18, 2010; August 18, 2010

Award Amount: $12,000

This program is designed to improve the quality of dissertation research. These grants provide funds for items not normally available through the student's university. Additionally, these grants allow doctoral students to undertake significant data gathering projects and to conduct field research in settings away from their campus that would not otherwise be possible. The program does not provide cost-of-living or other stipends or tuition. Outstanding proposals specify how the knowledge to be created advances economics science.

<http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/ses/econ/ddrip1.jsp>

*Decision, Risk & Management Sciences

Deadline: January 18, 2010; August 18, 2010

Award Amount: $12,000

The Decision, Risk and Management Sciences program supports scientific research directed at increasing the understanding and effectiveness of decision making by individuals, groups, organizations, and society. Disciplinary and interdisciplinary research, doctoral dissertation research, and workshops are funded in the areas of judgment and decision making; decision analysis and decision aids; risk analysis, perception, and communication; societal and public policy decision making; management science and organizational design. The program also supports small grants that are time-critical and small grants that are high-risk and of a potentially transformative nature (see Grants for Rapid Response Research (RAPID) and EARly-concept Grants for Exploratory Research(EAGER).)

<http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/ses/drms/ddrip1.jsp>

*Science, Technology, and Society

Deadline: February 1, 2010; September 9, 2010

Award Amount: $10,000

STS considers proposals that examine historical, philosophical, and sociological questions that arise in connection with science, engineering, and technology, and their respective interactions with society. STS has four components:

1. Ethics and Values in Science, Engineering and Technology (EVS),
2. History and Philosophy of Science, Engineering and Technology (HPS),

3. Social Studies of Science, Engineering and Technology (SSS),
4. Studies of Policy, Science, Engineering and Technology (SPS).

<http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/ses/ssociety/ssdi ss1.j.sp>

*Physical Anthropology

Deadline: February 9, 2010; August 16, 2010

Award Amount: $20,000

The Physical Anthropology Program supports basic research in areas related to human evolution and contemporary human biological variation. Research areas supported by the program include, but are not limited to, human genetic variation, human adaptation, human osteology and bone biology, human and nonhuman primate paleontology, functional anatomy, and primate socioecology. Grants supported in these areas are united by an underlying evolutionary framework, and often a consideration of adaptation as a central theoretical theme. Many proposals also have a biocultural orientation. The program frequently serves as a bridge within NSF between the social and behavioral sciences and the natural and physical sciences, and proposals are commonly jointly reviewed and funded with other programs.

<http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/bcs/phys/suppdiss.j.sp>

*Geography and Spatial Sciences

Deadline: February 15, 2010; October 15, 2010

Award Amount: $12,000

The Geography and Spatial Sciences Program sponsors research on the geographic distributions and interactions of human, physical, and biotic systems on the Earth's surface. Investigations are encouraged into the nature, causes, and consequences of human activity and natural environmental processes across a range of scales. Projects on a variety of topics (both domestic and international) qualify for support if they offer promise of contributing to scholarship by enhancing geographical knowledge, concepts, theories, methods, and their application to societal problems and concerns. GSS encourages projects that explicitly integrate undergraduate and graduate education into the overall research agenda. Proposals submitted for consideration by the Geography and Spatial Sciences Program at NSF tend to be most competitive if the research is grounded in relevant geographical theory, if it focuses on one or a few core questions grounded in the theoretical framework that has been established, if it articulates how scientifically sound methods will be used to explore the validity of answers to the core questions, and if the results are likely to contribute not only specific answers to those specific questions but also to the enhancement of broader geographic and/or spatial scientific theory. The project can draw on and contribute to theory in other fields, too, but to obtain at least some funding from GSS, efforts should be made to enhance fundamental geographic theory, and the investigators should plan to disseminate their results through presentations and publications for geographers and spatial scientists as well as other relevant communities.

*Soci ol ogy

Deadl i ne: February 15, 2010; October 15, 2010

Award Amount: $10,000

The Sociology Program supports basic research on all forms of human social organization -- societies, institutions, groups and demography - - and processes of individual and institutional change. The Program encourages theoretically focused empirical investigations aimed at improving the explanation of fundamental social processes. Included is research on organizations and organizational behavior, population dynamics, social movements, social groups, labor force participation, stratification and mobility, family, social networks, socialization, gender roles, and the sociology of science and technology. The Program supports both original data collections and secondary data analysis that use the full range of quantitative and qualitative methodological tools.

Theoretically grounded projects that offer methodological innovations and improvements for data collection and analysis are also welcomed. Click here for information on Strengthening Qualitative Research through Methodological Innovation and Integration. The Sociology Program also funds doctoral dissertation research to defray direct costs associated with conducting research, for example, dataset acquisition, additional statistical or methodological training, meeting with scholars associated with original datasets, and fieldwork away from the student's home campus. Bi omedi cal Engi neeri ng Fell ows and Schol ars Program

Award Amount: Round trip international airfare , A monthly living stipend , Health &Accident insurance ; Fell ows Only: Tui ti on allowance up to a maximum amount (to be determined by program administrators, typically no greater than $25,000)

The Whi taker International Fell ows and Schol ars Program sends emerging leaders in U. S. biomedical engineering (or bioengineering) to undertake a self-designed project that will enhance their own careers within the field. The Program consists of two branches: Whi taker Fell ows and Whi taker Schol ars. Whi taker Fell ows are biomedical engineers (or bioengineers, which is considered synonymous) ranging from graduating seniors to those conducting doctoral studies. Fell ows should have a BS or MS degree in biomedical engineering. Whi taker Schol ars are biomedical engineers who have/will have a PhD by the beginning date of their awards. Applicants are eligible ONLY for one or the other (depending on their academic level. Schol ars should have a degree in biomedical engineering and a doctorate (whi ch may not have been obtained more than three years prior to the start of the grant) OR will receive the PhD prior the start of the grant.

Nieman Fellowships for Journalists

Deadline: January 31, 2010 for U.S. Journalists and Global Health reporting applicants, December 15, 2010 for international journalists.

Award Amount: The U.S. Fellowships include tuition, a $60,000 stipend and housing and childcare support. Special funding arrangements apply to international fellows.

Nieman Fellowships provide a mid-career opportunity for journalists to spend a year of learning and reflection at Harvard. Fellowships are awarded to 12 U.S. journalists and 12 from other countries. The Foundation also awards 2 fellowships in Global Health reporting. Fellows design an individual course of study and participate in Nieman seminars. The Nieman Fellowship program is the oldest and best-known mid-career program for journalists in the world. More than 1,300 journalists from the U.S. and 88 other countries have come to Harvard for a year of learning, exploration and fellowship. Nieman Fellows are provided the opportunity to step back from deadlines, renew their intellectual curiosity and enrich their understanding of the topics they cover.

Fund for Independent Musicology Scholars

Deadline: January 25, 2010 and July 25, 2010

Award Amount: $500-$2,000

The purpose of the American Musicology Society's Janet Levy Fund is to support professional travel and research expenses for independent scholars who are members of the American Musicological Society. The award is open to members of the American Musicological Society who hold the Ph.D. or similar degree (e.g., D.M.A. in Historical Performance), who are not employed as a full-time faculty member in an institution of higher learning, and who are not emeritus faculty. No individual may receive a Levy Award more than once in a three-year period. Kinds of Projects: Examples of projects supported by the Levy Fund include travel to the Annual Meeting of the AMS, to a conference to read a paper or participate in an official capacity, or to archives or research libraries; research expenses; microfilms; and specialized research materials.

Spencer Education Fellowship

Deadline: January 31, 2010

Award amount: Three Fellowships will be awarded with stipends of $75,000 each.

The Fellowships are open to journalists, educators, and education policy researchers who interested in creating significant works of long-form education journalism.

The fellowship combines course work in residence at Columbia University with intense individual help with each fellow's project on some aspect of education in the United States.

Applicants must demonstrate their reporting and writing abilities through newspaper and magazine clips, books, monographs, academic reports, or other writing samples. The chief criterion for selection is the potential for research and writing excellence, and impact on the national discourse, in the field of education. An outline of a proposed project in education reporting--projects that are already underway are eligible--must accompany all applications. Preference will be given to those who can show the likelihood of publication for their idea, either through a letter of commitment from a news organization or a book contract.

Public Health Fellowship

Deadline: January 31, 2010

Award Amount: up to $4,000

The NEAID Foundation provides stipends for fellows to conduct public health research abroad of the abandoned infectious diseases of marginalized populations. These diseases include, but are not limited to: tuberculosis, malaria, trypanosomiasis, filariasis, schistosomiasis, dengue fever, leishmaniasis, leptospirosis and enteric pathogens. These projects should evaluate either the molecular, behavioral, social, or interventional epidemiology associated with these diseases. Applicants for NEAID fellowships do not need to be United States citizens, but must be enrolled at an accredited graduate institution within the United States pursuing a Masters degree in Public Health. Recent MPH graduates who have finished their education within the past 2 years are also welcome to apply. MD students and PhD students are not eligible to apply during this funding cycle, though we hope to expand our programs in the future. Click here for past projects.

Chemical Science Teaching Award

Deadline: January 31, 2010

Award Amount: $3,250

Royal Society of Chemistry's Higher Education Teaching Award recognizes outstanding teaching skills and/or development of innovative materials/methods in higher education in Chemical Science. Eligibility: Open to everyone without restrictions and Candidates are permitted to nominate themselves. View past winners here.

High Quality Professional Development Program for Faculty

Deadline: February 1, 2010

Award Amount: $2,000

The National Education Association's Learning and Leadership Grants support public school teachers, public education support professionals, and/or faculty and staff in public institutions of higher education for one of the following two purposes:

- Grants to individuals fund participation in high-quality professional development experiences, such as summer institutes or action research; or
- Grants to groups fund collegial study, including study groups, action research, lesson study, or mentoring experiences for faculty or staff new to an assignment.

All professional development must improve practice, curriculum, and student achievement. "One-shot" professional growth experiences, such as attending a national conference or engaging a professional speaker, are discouraged. Decisions regarding the content of the professional growth activities must be based upon an assessment of student work undertaken with colleagues, and must be integrated into the institutional planning process. Eligibility: Applicants must be practicing U.S.:

- public school teachers in grades PreK-12;
- public school education support professionals, or;
- faculty and staff at public higher education institutions.

Scholarly Research Projects in all Areas of the Humanities Fellowship

Deadline: February 1, 2010

Award Amount: Fellowships range from one to three months, with stipends of $3,000 per month. Also available are $1,200 to $1,700 travel stipends and dissertation fellowships with a $1,500 stipend.

The Harry Ransom Center, a humanities research library and museum at the University of Texas at Austin, is accepting applications for its 2010-2011 Research Fellowships in the Humanities. The Ransom Center awards about fifty fellowships annually to support scholarly research projects in all areas of the humanities, including literature, photography, film, art, the performing arts, music, and cultural history. Applicants must demonstrate the need for substantial on-site use of the center's collections of art, books and periodicals, film, French and Italian, manuscripts, performing arts and photography. Please see below for more information on each of these collections. All applicants, with the exception of those applying for dissertation fellowships, must be post-doctorates or independent scholars with a substantial record of scholarly achievement.

*Descriptions of the Collections:

Art: The art collection is the Ransom Center's repository of drawings, paintings, sculpture, and limited edition prints. It includes over 65,000 American, European, and Asian works of art from the fifteenth through the twentieth centuries. Its strengths include notable American, British, French, and Mexican artists' works on paper. Complementing the Ransom Center's extensive rare book and manuscript collections are exceptional examples of literary portraiture as well as art created by writers and poets. With materials ranging from caricatures and cartoons, book illustration and fine presses, to early European popular imagery, Pre-Raphaelite art, modern French art, posters, and artists' books, the art collection holds numerous opportunities for original research and specialized study.

Books and Periodicals: The more than eight hundred thousand volumes gathered at the Ransom Center make possible a study of the history of the book from its beginnings in the manuscript period through the twentieth century. Among the several hundred items in the pre-1700 manuscripts collection are Ptolemaic papyri of the third to first century B.C., an eleventh-century Bede codex from the monastery at Tegernsee, the richly illuminated Chronicles (ca. 1450) of Jean Froissart (1337-1404) and the fifteenth-century Belleville Book of Hours. Incunabular holdings (three hundred eighty volumes and four hundred leaves) begin with the Gutenberg Bible of 1455. The Center's copy, on paper, is one of only five complete exemplars in the United States. The Center's Pforzheimer Library holds William Caxton's edition of Lefevre's Histories of Troye (1474), the first book printed in English, along with six other works by Caxton.

Film: The Ransom Center film collection provides research opportunities for scholars working in history, music, popular culture, textual criticism, and film history and criticism. The collections include more than 10,000 scripts for film, television, and radio; more than 15,000 posters, lobby cards, and other advertising materials; and over a million photographs, including film stills, portrait and publicity photographs, set and location reference stills, makeup and wardrobe stills, and candid, behind-the-scenes photographs. Virtually all of the collections include correspondence, memos, production records, or business records. The bulk of the collection concerns mainstream Hollywood filmmaking from the silent era through the present day. Hollywood's Golden Age (1930-1950) is particularly well represented. Other archives relate to the Texas film industry, television, and radio.

French and Italian: The Ransom Center's collections of French and Italian printed and manuscript materials provide a wealth of resources for research in literature, art, and music from the medieval period through the twentieth century. The materials span the breadth of the Center's holdings; they include manuscripts, correspondence, music scores, books, drawings, paintings, prints, and photographs. The Carlton Lake collection of French literature, music, and art is particularly rich in nineteenth- and twentieth-century works and is considered to be one of the most significant resources for the study of French modernism outside France. Manuscripts: Manuscripts, annotated typescripts, corrected proofs and galleys, notes, correspondence, diaries, and volumes from the personal libraries of many of the most important twentieth-century authors of North America, Great Britain, and France are the Ransom Center's special strength. In addition, printed volumes in first and subsequent editions, as well as variants, translations, abridgements, adaptations, and bibliographical, biographical, and critical works provide a basis for the study of most of the Center's original materials.

Performing Arts: This research collection documents the history of theater, dance, costume and scenic design, opera, and popular entertainments such as vaudeville, the circus, pantomime, magic, puppetry, and minstrel shows. The primary emphasis is on British and American theater from the eighteenth through mid-twentieth centuries. In addition to playscripts, promptbooks, correspondence, playbills and programs, and clippings, the collection is rich in visual material such as production photographs, set and costume renderings, posters, prints and engravings, and set models. The archival collections are complemented by audiovisual holdings, a growing costume collection, and a comprehensive library of published materials

Photography: The cornerstone of the photography collection is the renowned Helmut and Alison Gernsheim collection, which is best known for its treasures of nineteenth-century photography, including the world's first photograph, a unique image created in 1826 by the French inventor Joseph Nicéphore Niépce. Since that landmark acquisition, the photography collection has expanded into such diverse areas as fine art, photojournalism, documentary photography, the history of photography, and its technology. These holdings currently amount to over five million prints and negatives, supplemented by books, manuscripts, journals, and memorabilia of significant photographers since the medium's invention.

Social Entrepreneurship Awards

Deadline: February 10, 2010

Award Amount: $1,000,000

The Skoll Foundation's Awards for Social Entrepreneurship support social entrepreneurs whose work has the potential for large-scale influence on critical challenges of our time: tolerance and human rights, health, economic and social equity, peace and security, institutional responsibility, and environmental sustainability. These issues are at the heart of the foundation's vision of empowering people to create a peaceful, prosperous, sustainable world. Within these issues, they are particularly interested in applications from social entrepreneurs working in five critical sub-issue areas that threaten the survival of humanity – climate change, nuclear proliferation, pandemics, conflict in the Middle East and water scarcity. Horticulture Fellowship

Deadline: March 1, 2010

Award Amount: $26,000 for 12 months or $13,000 for 6 months

The Smithsonian Institution's Horticulture Services Division (HSD) invites applications for research fellowships in the field of horticulture. Fellowships support full-time independent, thesis and dissertation research based at HSD's office in Washington, D.C. The Enid A. Haupt Fellowship in Horticulture was made possible by a generous endowment from philanthropist Enid Annenberg Haupt who, during her lifetime, passionately supported the creation of public gardens and preservation of horticultural institutions. In that same spirit, the Smithsonian Institution's Horticulture Services Division offers the Haupt Fellowship to encourage the study of, and professions in, the field of horticulture in its broadest sense. Applicants must be enrolled in a graduate program seeking (or have received) their Master's or Ph.D. in horticulture, landscape architecture, cultural studies, or a related discipline with concentrations in garden history or landscape studies. Applicants whose native language is not English are expected to have the ability to write and converse fluently in English. Applicants must be U.S. citizens or residents for three years prior to application.

Non Profit Development Program

Deadline: March 1, 2010

Award Amount: $3,000

The National Academy of Social Insurance's Nathan J. Stark Internship for Nonprofit Development will provide two students with the opportunity to learn about nonprofit organizations, how they work, how they raise funds, and how they make a difference. Interns will be based at the National Academy of Social Insurance or another nonprofit organization, the National Health Policy Forum. Each summer, two students interested in a career in the nonprofit sector will be awarded an internship. The interns come to Washington, D.C., for twelve weeks during the summer semester. The internship includes a $3,000 honorarium and the opportunity to participate in a series of seminars and programs. International students with valid student visas can be placed with these nongovernmental organizations, if placement projects match their skills and interests.
